Alison,

I wish you the best of luck w/ the rest of high school - it goes by SO fast I can't even believe i'm graduating. i'm glad I got a chance to know you through peer leadership, your such a nice + kind person. I hope I see you over the summer + next year.

best wishes,
Kelly.

Alison (sabina)
only 2 more years!! Aaahhh! scary! that means pretty clay for 2 more French years. Yuck! oh well. I'm sure we'll survive. Don't ever change. I ♡ ya! You're an awesome person. Have a good summer. We'll have to get together!
Love,
Maegen

1995

Bound Together- Littleton's Class of 1995 is made up of a diverse group of students. We have those who are slightly on the rebellious side, ones who can never pass up a good argument, the dreaming and artistic ones, the brave athletes, and the hard working academics. Although we are all very different and all have different interests, hobbies and likes, we are able to put our differences aside when our time together really counts.

As freshmen, we started our annual tradition of having a table at the Littleton Town Holiday Bazaar as a fund raiser. Usually, the only school group that had a table was the Sr. High Student Council, and although it wasn't etched in stone, it was made clear to us that it was going to stay that way. But, the Holiday Bazaar Committee obviously didn't know the power of Nathan Long, our determined class president, born with permanent money signs gleaming in his eyes. After him finally convincing them that we would have a quality table, we were given the leftover table that nobody seemed to want. Of course, we had no problem with that. We busily prepared our crafts for the table. Although few of us had ever touched a sewing machine, much less knew what one looked like, Mrs. Pickard, Jaime's mom, graciously offered her time and talent to help us make a quilt to be raffled off at the Bazaar. Hey, to us, sewing sounded easy. We plunged in with enthusiasm learning how to sew, making the connection between the sewing machine pedal and that of the gas pedal of a car. But we fast learned that the harder you pressed, the more likely you would be sitting picking out stitches. Even the guys helped. There weren't many problems among them: a few whining of pins sticking in their fingers, and that accident when a needle on the machine broke and poked one unsuspecting guy in the neck. The quilt came out beautifully, and we all learned that some things aren't as easy as they look. Overall, it was a success; we all had new confidence in ourselves. This began our yearly tradition. So, now when the Christmas Carols start filling the air, the Class of '95 starts sewing. We all l earn a lot from our experiences with each other, and this makes us "Bound Together."

Presented in the pages ahead is an insight to our class and other students and members of Littleton High School. You'll see what makes us a school to be proud of.

Summer ... a very important part of the year. It allows students to grow and learn about themselves and the world around them. Many students take their summer opportunity to travel, work and relax. Some of the things students did this summer include traveling through Europe and the United States, participating in sporting events, going to various camps, and working. This page is dedicated to "summer fun," the purpose being to share with other students the different experiences one can have between school years. Highlighted on this page are a few of the trips students took.

Katie and Sharon Foley spent three weeks in Hawaii. Here they are hangin' loose with some native Hawaiian hula dancers.

Holli Turner explored the sea of Hawaii during her stay.

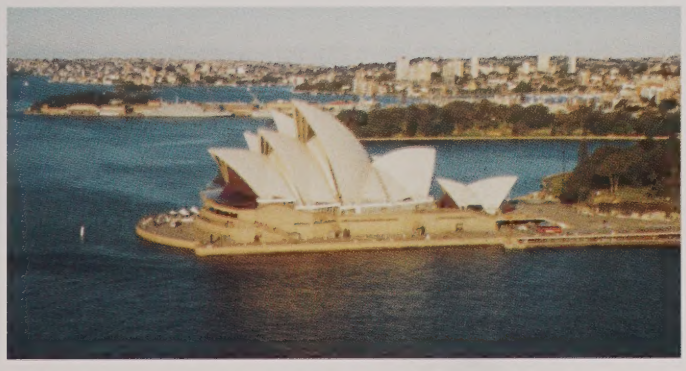
Adam Terella, super cycler, reaches speeds of 60 mph during his races. As one of the best cyclers of his age group in the country, Adam placed seventh at the nationals in Seattle. Here he is biking in the U.S. Olympic Festival.

Here, one of the kangaroos, with kid, Marjorie Bell saw on her trek through Australia.

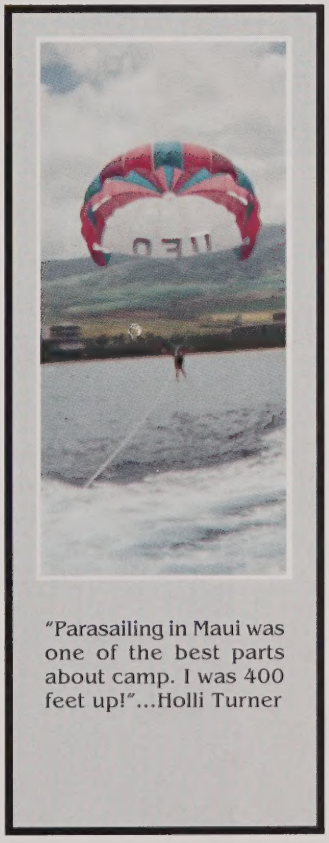
Sibylle Haupert spent time in France, where she saw exquisite French architecture.

Cara Thompson spent the summer learning French and relaxing on the beautiful French Riviera.

While in France, Cara Thompson had time to visit La Tour Effiel in Paris.



Sydney Australia's famous Opera House is another sight Marjorie Bell visited.



"Parasailing in Maui was one of the best parts about camp. I was 400 feet up!"...Holli Turner

Finally, we see ourselves at the top as...

Jenn Lally concentrates on her music as the Sr. High band prepares for their annual Holiday Concert.

To begin with, we would like to thank Mrs. Holt and Mrs. Coburn for seeing us through these memorable years. They have been incredibly supportive throughout our high school careers. Even when we decided to test them at one of the Pep Rally's by cheering about Oscar Meyer Bologna instead of the usual V-I-C-T-I-O-R-Y, they realized it was in our personalities to do so, and took it with a laugh. They have also supported us with interesting ideas and enthusiastic efforts in order to make our fundraisers unique as well as successful. Face-painting to boost our school spirit at the Homecoming football game, the t-shirt sale to aid our class trip, and the candy sale to satisfy our school's sweet tooth, are just a few activities they have carried us through. We're sure they never will want to set foot near another yard sale again, after the mess we made with our not-so-successful one the spring of our sophomore year. All-in-all, Mrs. Holt and Mrs. Coburn, thank you for all the effort and care you've given to our class. We never would have made it without you.

"And they held the future in the palms of their hands..."

Remember When...

Not so long ago we were making our start!

As we graduate from Littleton High School, we open a new chapter in our lives as well as close one. We will carry with us the memories of good times we had with each other from kindergarten until high school. Our first year in school, we met each other playing in the sand tables in the kindergarten room and learned the alphabet by means of "The Letterman." Throughout the week, we lived by that letter. We sang songs about the letter, colored by the letter, and ate snacks that began with the letter. Then we met grade school, where the most popular time of the day was definitely recess. Once we were let out of our confines, the kickball field became alive with us playing the game of our lives. The swing sets were filled with girls being pushed by the boys they thought cute, while the slide awaited its next victim of a broken bone. A few of us daring ones, attempted to breakdance on a sheet of cardboard dragged out with a boom box each recess when that was the in thing to do. As we moved to the Middle School, we looked forward to the Friday movies in Mr. Riley's room and were excited about changing classrooms. Our first dances were like most first dances, where the girls stand on one side giggling and the boys on the other with their hands shoved in their pockets. Sixth grade brought with it Nature's Classroom where we left home for a week and adventured to Thompson's Island in Boston Harbor. It was our first experience of being away from home and school for a whole week. Of course the food was bad, and the electricity went out, but we had fun exploring the sea coast playing Predator Prey and tending to our "egg babies." Moving into the Jr. Sr. High School was a good experience for most of us. We looked up to the older kids, and mimicked their every move. Now, looking at the seventh graders and the way we used to be, a comment made by every one of us at least once: "We were never like that, were we?"

The Toilet Paper Scam

You and your best friends are driving around at your average speed, approximately 69.8 m.p.h. , drinking Coke, a preferred beverage 2:1 over Pepsi, and listening to KISS 108. So far, you've had one of those perfect 90210 kind of days, the kind where no matter where you eat, Taco Bell or Pizza Hut, the toilet paper is always over.

Speaking of toilet paper, have you ever noticed how many different varieties of toilet paper lurk in this world? Every roll seems to look mighty similar, but if you experience a myriad of kinds you'll eventually feel the difference. Often you may look at a brand new roll and become fooled by its seemingly endless quantity, but before you find the time to think, you become the person who's left at the end of the roll.

The sun roof is open and the summer sun some what blinds you with a golden haze. You can tell by the smiles and carefree laughter that every one of your best friends in your superior senior class shares happiness. And you know someone in that car, most likely he or she sitting in the back, is thinking about how much we'll miss each other when ever our favorite stall has run out of T.P.

Independently, we'll venture into a grown-up world becoming doctors, lawyers and who we battled with the most... parents. Only then will we truly appreciate the safe feeling of LHS, its plastic fish bowl effect.

Misprint- Chris Benjamin prefers his toilet paper sunny-side up.

Misprint- Andrea Telford will miss Ms. Beasley's pink slippers the most.

Misprint- Jaime Pickard won't miss the girl : guy ratio.

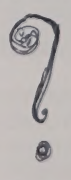
Note- Some of us couldn't quite decipher the favorite cafeteria entree du jour, but it was a lot tastier than Jeffery Dahmer's house.

Observation- Most overly used word= LIKE! , followed by the f-word.

Observation- We've seen Aladdin the most times.

Note- Something about Meg Ryan/ Tom Hanks and Rhubarb plant?



CLASS WILLS

I Mandy Bulger, leave 2 decades of siblings to the school. I, Jon Preston, leave Lynn Dungey all the wet labs left to me. I, Donald Fetterhoff, leave Littleton High School my sister Meagan. I, Jeff McKinley, leave. I, Rachel Clifford, leave David Wright his L.H.S. football sweatshirt, (if he can find it!) I, Heather Wetherbee, leave Bucky Beaver to my sister Shawnna. I, Chris Benjamin, leave my car stereo to anyone who can handle the power. I, Holli Turner, leave my sister Gretchen my favorite hat to wear to school and a quart of peanut butter choc. chip ice cream. I, Jasmine McArthur, leave Sean Terrio Matt's purple fuzzy thing. I, Kristin Shepple, leave Miss Corkum and DJ knowing that Damon Bailey was the best basketball player ever. I, Andrea Telford, leave knowing I will never have to go to another gym class again. I, Kerry McDonald, leave Lisa Frizzell the best of luck in her senior year. I, Laura Kanniard, leave Stevie, Stacie, and Michael to enjoy many new experiences, to grow daily, and to always support one another. I, Abbe Knee, leave Lisa Frizzell the path to go to while we are gone, whenever she needs it. I, Karen Lyons, leave the tennis team knowing that my doubles partner and I made tennis a contact sport. I, Jodi Mead, leave my little brother the best of luck in the rest of his high school yrs. I, Andrew Struth, leave Justin with 5 more fun years of high school as one of Mrs. B's babies. I, Amy Harland, leave Lisa Frizzell my Rhode Island shorts for gym, Lisa Neary Hampton Beach, and Andy Harland until 1999. I, Jenn Lally, leave the field hockey team a warning: Watch out for Siobhon's drives! To Meghan -Luck and Peace. I, Jamie Pickard, leave my brother 2 years on the big yellow limo, the girls soccer team all the luck in the world, and another Pickard to put up with, and knowing superman never got paid. I, Patricia Naughton, leave Mr. Corbett a smoke detector for the girl's bathroom. I, Eric Rivas, leave all of my love to Lisa Neary. I, Magnus Westrin, leave Scotty Allyn a tape with Ace of Bace. I don't leave Gretchen anything ... I'll take her with me to Sweden. I, Shauna Walsh, leave all of the Mario's and Vinni's my beautifully original sister, Meghan Walsh. I also leave them warned-She is as strong as she is beautiful. I, Cara Jean Thompson, part pour la France et je souhaite bonne chance et sante 'a ma ch'ere Sibylle Haupert. I, Benjamin Andrews, leave my car to anyone stupid enough to sink as much money as I did into it. I, Carla Menano, leave Jenn Cantino another year of Littleton High School. I, Colleen Graham, leave Shawna the wisdom to accept the things she cannot change, and change the things she cannot accept. I, Elizabeth Creed, leave a long lost Russell to Rachel Clifford. I, Katie Carson, leave Ron my love of fudgesickles. I, Ralph Ettlin, leave all my yodel tapes to Greg Butler and all my friends at the end of the year. I, Nathan Long, leave Fitz a razor. I, Michael Anderson, leave Karen Lyons her banana split cake. I, Matthew Cerullo, leave Greg Sloboda 2 more years of LHS. I, Amanda Fritz, leave Ms. Marsh much thanks for all the guidance she has given me. I, Erica Foote, leave Lisa Frizzell enough money to pay back Triple A, and Alex Foote all the love and luck for the next 11 years ! I, Kerianne Johnston, leave Stevie Wright one more Labor Day trip, and another year of high school. I, Erin Grundy, leave love and luck to my sisters always. I, Jim Poulin, leave Meghan Walsh the magic tic tac. I, Alison Lindblom, leave high school to my memories. I, Robert Kellerman, leave Jenn Cantino at least 1 serious conversation. I, Heather Dennehy, leave Mary the best of luck in her upcoming years, and to Sarah, the swing on the left. I, Michelle Foreman, leave Dabug all the luck in finding another Miaq who could compare to the one & only. I, Brandee Graves, leave everyone the hope they might find what they are looking for in their lives, especially Jo & Melissa. I hope their lifeguards from the beach find them. Caitlin ... find your own way to school on the big yellow limo. Peace. I, Stephen Kavigian, leave. I, Jason Burgess, leave all my love to S.B.; and C.P., D. C., and S.W. the best of luck.

Seventh grade is tough, but nothing was too tough for these four- Patty Naughton, Michelle Foreman, Erica Foote and Kristy.

Kristy and Jodi Mead agree that finishing junior high is a cause for celebration.

Kristy dresses up to our hallway theme of "night" during our freshmen year.

I am sorry I never told you, but . . .
I love you,
I'll miss you.
I am sorry I never told you, but . . .
I care about you,
I'll cherish you.
Remember all the good times we had.
Remember the times that were also sad.
When you think of me,
Laugh, don't cry.
When you think of me,
Don't ever say good-bye.

In Memory

Kristy Hartwell

Making It Through the School Day

As we seniors see the light at the end of the tunnel, we have to remind ourselves that we are not quite there-YET. Some school days drag on, while others seem to fly by. Senior privilege helps a bit- if we have a study first we can come in at 8:24 (But not a minute late, or you better start praying that Risa's in a good mood!) and we can get a jump on our afternoon if study falls last mod. Of course, there are those of us who did manage to (oops!) get a D, and spent those studies studying- or sleeping as the case might be. Here's a look at our school day as the days are diminishing, 62, 61, 60, 59 . . .

Mike Anderson receives praise from Mr. Corbett: "Isn't this a face any mother could love?"

Chris Benjamin was scared we would forget him, but who could forget an act like his?

Here's Greg Butler wondering what to do with that three long minutes left in lunch.

Heather Wetherbee and Jodi Mead are happy that there's only a little while longer until last period is finally over.

So, do you think that a comic book has to do with History, Chris Hooley?

What's your bet that Matt Cerullo wasn't ready for this picture and instead enjoying one of those oh so delicious subs from the cafe?

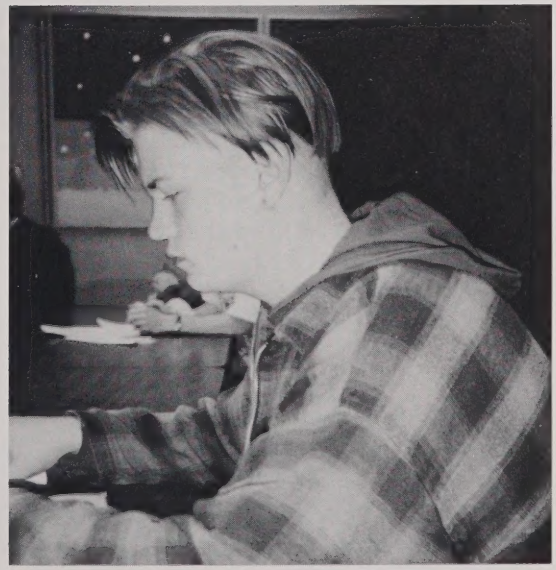
Kerry McDonald and Michelle Foreman listen (and wonder, "When are we ever going to have to know this?") as Mr. Webster discusses World War I.

Abbe Knee runs out of English class before Mr. Spaulding has a chance to assign that night's homework.

Karen Lyons and Donny Fetterhoff sit in the hall way before homeroom and watch as people try to pass the senior maze.

Locker wars were common in the fall sports season, until they all mysteriously disappeared sometime after fall sports were long over.

Our senior board continued to be outstanding this year leading us to more victories in the bulletin board contest held each term.



What hair color, shape or style is Nathan Jansky sporting this week?

All Tangled Up In Underclass

Powder Puff- It's a Monday afternoon, 3:00 you're extremely happy this Monday is finally over. You've been going crazy al day. As you open the door to your car, a quick glance at the football field leaves you squinting your eyes- But don't worry you're not as crazy as you feared. Those are senior guys wearing skirts, those are girls trying their hardest to imitate Drew Bledsoe. Yes, on November 15, 1994 a 3 P.M., various girls from the Freshmen through Senior classes attempted to ge down and in the dirt as they fought each other to win the Powder Puff title. The Sophomores came out on top after fi nally defeating the Seniors (12-0). The Juniors were unfortunately defeated in

What would a good Powder Puff game be without supportive fans? Shannon Grundy, Heather Legenza, Leighann Davies, and Jemimah Childs all show support for their fellow Sophomores as they score points.

the first round by the seniors with a score of 12-6 in overtime. The Freshmen were defeated quickly by the overpowering Sophomores in the first round with a scoreless game of 12-0, but promise to come back strong next year as they present the Sophomores with more of a challenge!

All of us are flying around the school in a flurry of activity. Seventh graders are getting used to the "Big Kids School" - and settling down for a six-year stay here while Juniors are looking ahead towards the end of the tunnel. The rest of us are just hoping that this year goes well with novels to read and dissect, money to raise for our classes, community service to perform, club meetings to get to, Driver's Ed to pass, sports to play, and (of course!) tests to study for. But school is not all stress, right?! We DO still have study hall, dances, pep rallies (the Sophomores are still riding high from their win), Culture Week and Foreign Language Week, the Powder Puff game, assorted field trips, and for some eighth graders, the possibility of a trip to Washington DC. The new kids must have been impressed with our school because Amanda Hutchins, a seventh grader, commented that she liked the high school because "there is more freedom and the people respect you more."

Bryan McDonnell isn't the only student who finds it hard to stay awake during a first period class.

As we sat at the door of our senior year, the journey at last reaching its final stretch, we glanced back upon all of our years together. The memories, some good, some bad, would always stay with us. When we first entered the school as seventh graders, we were intimidated by the older kids, particularly the juniors and seniors. Now we became the older kids. What a great feeling! Our academic success became an important factor for our futures. Getting through the SAT's and, of course, our first dreaded task, the infamous Critical Review was a daunting task for some of us. Others of us relied on our laid-back approach, clouding the distinction between academics and social life. And which procrastinators finally needed to start that "Community Service"? Our memory book added prom planning, social studies and English field trips, and the athletic prowess of our class during Culture (Spirit) Week. The most relishing thought of the whole year though, was the prospect of being THE SENIORS with all the privileges and responsibilities.

Sophomore year is often thought of as the "nobody year." We weren't the youngest, we definitely weren't the oldest, and we were just about finished making our transition into high school. This year was definitely not a "nobody year." We were certainly recognized for what we accomplished. We won the pep rally, and we beat the freshmen and the seniors to get first place in the Powder Puff games . . . hmmm. A pattern? Maybe. We changed and grew along with everyone else, yet we continued to unite as a class. Moving on through our last two years, we might not remember our sophomore year as clearly , but we will remember that the seeds of our strength were formed here. As we entered the high school, we found that our lives just began. We experienced more challenging courses and tougher decisions that prepared us for becoming older. Some of us were entering a time in our lives when we came across the difficult choices of adolescence and found our true friends through it all. We looked to the school and the older students as our guides to the future.

When we joined the sports programs this year, or tried new things, we found it much more competitive and demanding once we reached that level. Many of us joined club activities that were offered by the school. We found our place in the school where we felt most needed and most comfortable.

We enjoyed many new experiences through the year. Having terrific advisors and making money for our class, which went well, were just some. We were glad to have Mr. Moriarty and Mr. Rahilly aboard and looked forward to working with them in the upcoming years. As another year quickly passed by, we took with us the experiences we've learned. Our good times of powder puff, culture week, and group activities made us the class we are. We looked forward to enjoying the summer as three more years of high school would bring us back together.

Making the Seams in ACADEMICS

Academics are, naturally, an impor tant component of any school. A Littleton Jr. Sr. High School, we are fortunate to have an excellent teach ing staff who foster a desire to learn in us. Whether dissecting cats in Mrs. Leonard's Anatomy class, o discussing Hamlet's mental anguish in Mrs. Webster's English class, we gain, not only knowledge of the sub ject we are studying, but of the world around us. Academics a Littleton High School are not simply about school and what we have to learn; they are about what we want to learn.

Senior Heather Dennehy wonders if the infamous research paper not only does a number on the students but on English teacher Mr. Spaulding as well.

Junior Kerry Holland stays after school to get some extra help in Ms. Lordan's Algebra class.

The students in this school have one common thread tying them together: four distinct years of English.

Freshmen fish with Santiago, travel Greece with Odysseus, kill with Okonkwo, love with Romeo and Juliet, spend with Pip, and struggle with Scout, Jem, and Frankie.

"Friends, Romans, Countrymen (and Sophomores), lend me your ears" and let me tell you about our "Struggles with Essays." Tenth graders experience Adam's terror of the American Revolution and live the French Revolution through Dickens's words.

Juniors look through three men's eyes at conflict, loneliness, and death; they also write critical reviews of Catcher in the Rye and a "free" book.

Seniors study Macbeth's murder and Finny's envy of his friends. Finally, they attempt and conquer the research paper.

All these novels help us understand more of the real world, enhance our creativity, and free our minds, all with the help of our teachers.

Junior Steve Wright plays with that "tornado thing" in Mr. Moriarty's physics class. Aren't you supposed to be paying attention, Steve?

Below Katie Slocombe, Shannon Feehan, Melissia Tucker, and Sarah Calhoun work in Mr. Fitzpatrick's chemistry class on a lab.

Most of the students here are busy in the science wing—in one form or another! Mrs. Leonard's biology classes work on various experiments throughout the year, including the 3-D DNA models, the edible model of a body part, and the bean plants. The Chemistry I classes try to comprehend the baffling. They do manage to get it with Fitz's endless patience and his thrilling experiments. The physics classes have a new twist to them: the MacMotion program, which is used to get instant results on labs. Mr. Moriarty's students are entertained with his labs, especially the one with the bed of nails. They make everything from esters to pizza in Chemistry II! Then, in January, they move on to Physics II, which is like Physics I but more cool labs. Anatomy and Physiology students examine their de-furred felines thoroughly, dissecting organs as they go. Two students where heard commenting that their cat had 40 worms in its stomach! Who says the science room doesn't offer a wide variety of experiences!

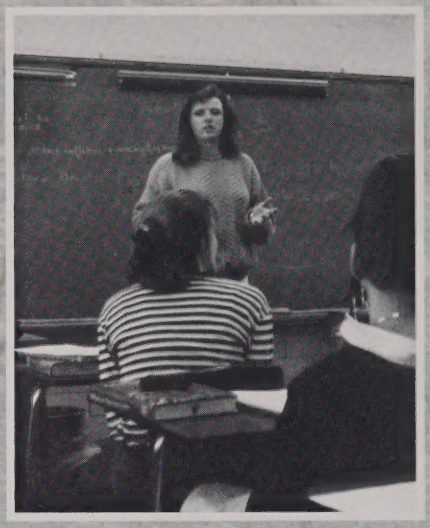
The language labs are used in French and Spanish classes to aid in the comprehension and vocabulary of students in foreign languages. Here juniors Amanda Olsen and Kevin Anderson enjoy using the lab.

Of the 440 students in Littleton High, about 80% take foreign languages. They work hard to master grammar and vocabulary and are rewarded with celebrations and music. Anna Lavrentievna's Russian classes sing songs that show off their intelligence, like "Ya nee znayoo." Mrs. Sherman always brings a smile to her French and Spanish classes, even if she does sometimes gets the two languages mixed up! Mrs. Clark's French classes aren't always work. Every once in a while, she lets her students play trivia, or watch translated versions of Disney classics. Mrs. Moran's Spanish classes explore the holiday spirit of the Day of the Dead and sing Feliz Cumpleaños on birthdays. All these celebrations bring the world a little closer to each student.



Thinking this is a good way to avoid Mr. Crowley's antics, Sean Carbone hides under the desk.

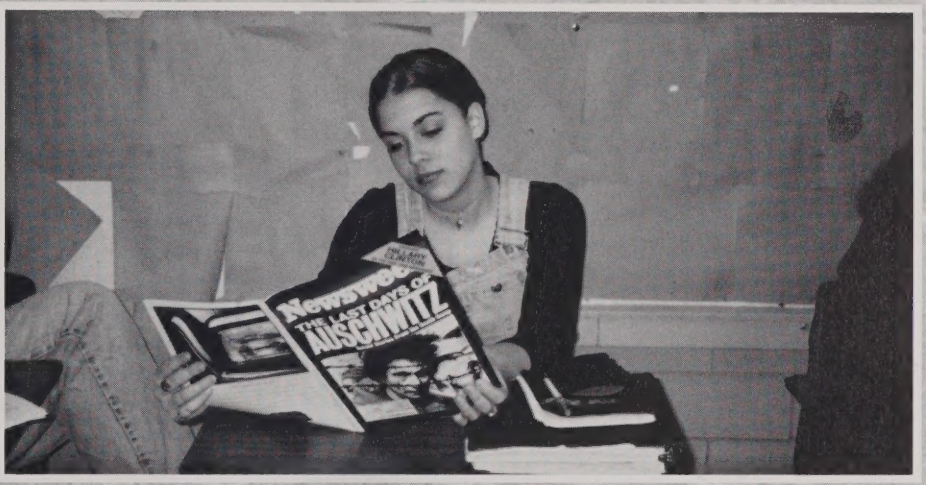
Social Studies



Current events are an important part of Littleton's social studies classes. Students in Mr. Webster's history classes are required to write an article report to be presented to the class on Mondays.

Maps, maps, maps. What would we do if the history rooms weren't filled with hanging maps, maps on the bulletin boards, maps to draw on, and globes? Here Erin McGrath looks for one of those hidden away countries.

Mrs. Coburn somehow turns Modern European History into something we are willing to tolerate with her creative ways of teaching and notetaking.

It is the job of our teachers to keep us informed about what has happened, and what is happening on this changing planet. This year freshmen traveled the globe exploring new countries. The ever-present foreigners, Ralph and Magnus, from Switzerland and Sweden respectively, talked about life in their countries and the transition between countries. Most sophomores took a social studies course even though it wasn't required. Mrs. Coburn enjoyed her classes, teaching about the many revolutions in Europe. Mr. Webster taught students about the stock market and dealing with money in America. Mr. Robinson held mock trial for one quarter in a law class. Ms. Corkum's junior U.S. History classes rewrote the Constitution and reconstructed the country after the Civil War. Mr. Webster enlightened the seniors as to the gruesome details of the two World Wars and the Holocaust. All these courses help us to understand that things have not always been the same, and that they will not stay the same, either.

Practical And Fine Arts

Anyone who has attended a school concert knows that although the chorus is small in size, its harmony and talent make up for it.

Art students are always busy, whether they're drawing, painting or sculpting. Some art work gets displayed in the library, cafeteria, or lobby. While you're looking at the fine arts in the library, check out a book on Pascal or Basic! These and other computer skills can help you in music, believe it or not. Mr. Foley has a program that plays music that students have composed. The sound of the talented chorus and band harmonizes with the hum of band saws cutting out bird houses next door in the technical education building. Academic learning is supplemented by the skills one learns in these classes.

We all know Mr. Foley as a joking man, but when he's conducting, he is totally serious. Well, most of the time anyway.

What was the most disastrous project you ever did in tech ed. or art?

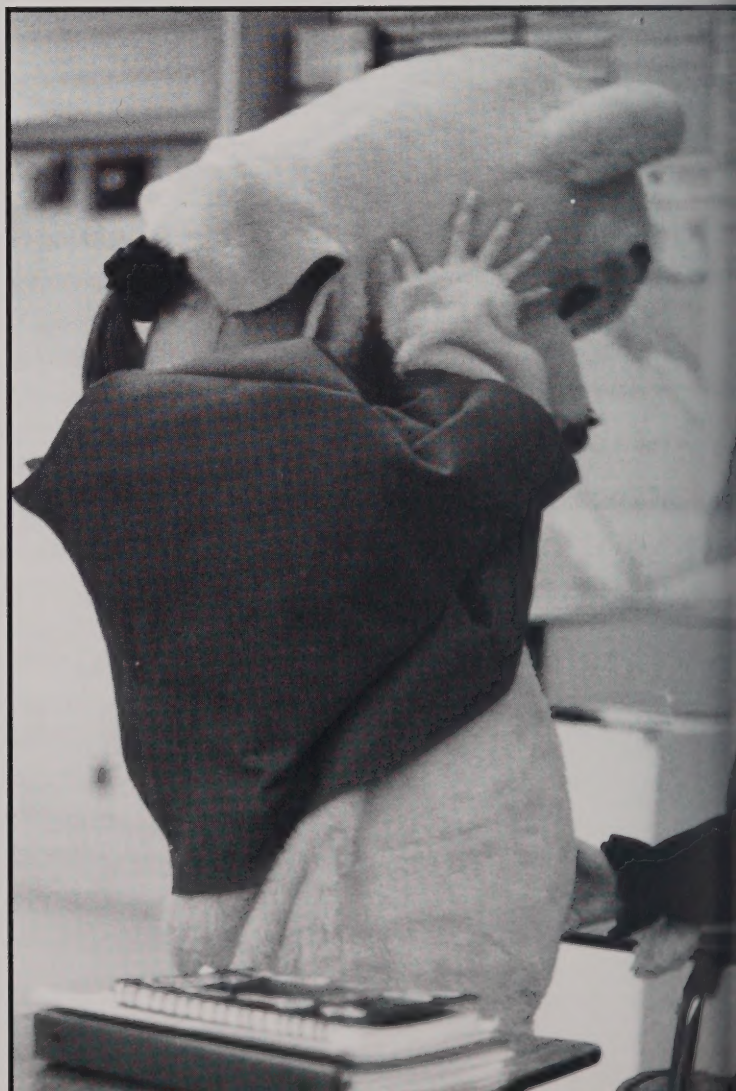
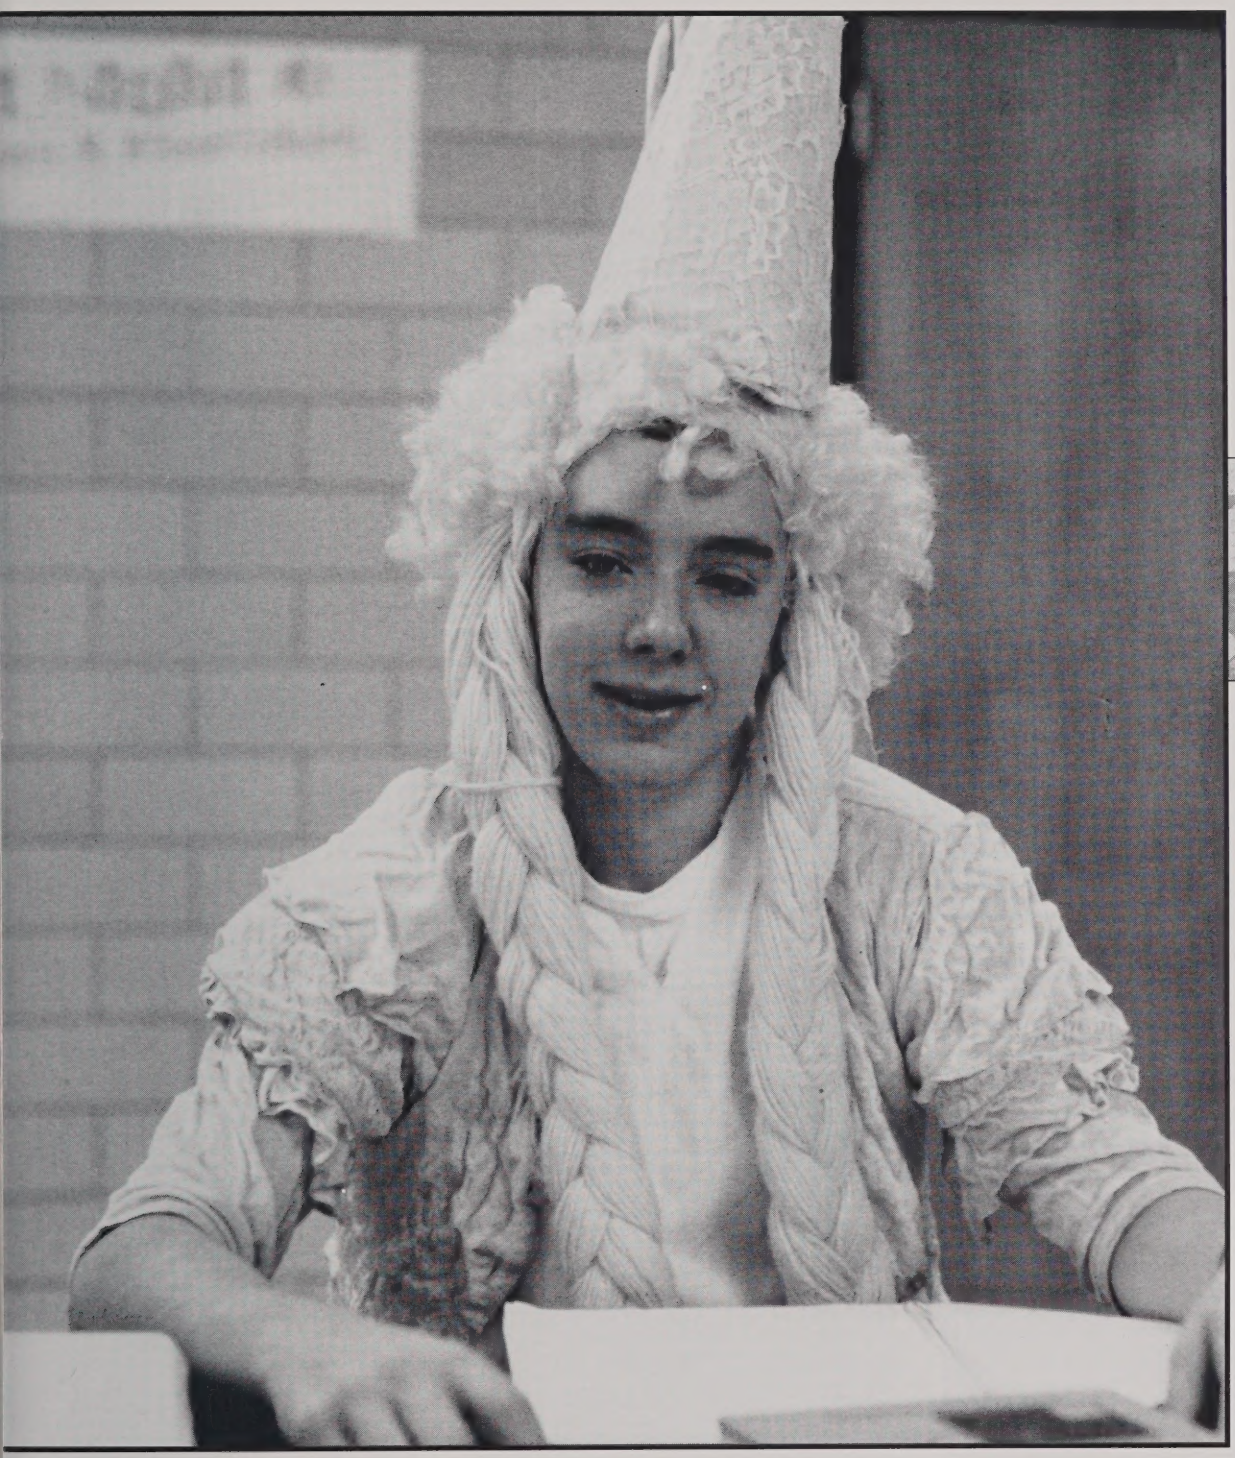
STUDENT LIFE

On October 31, 1994, members of the senior class dressed in costume for the day. There was quite an array of costumes, from scarecrows, jailbirds, and dice, to flappers, cows and waitresses. Here, Laura Kanniard practices her yodels of "Ricola, Ricola"!

Being in a small school such as Littleton might make you feel trapped. But, knowing almost everybody can sometimes come in handy, like when you need some money, or a ride, you always have someone to ask. The small size of our school helps to bind us together, (thus the theme of this book). This is apparent during the activities throughout the year that bring out our school spirit.

As the years go by, close friends get closer, and new friends come into the picture. People fade in and out, but a strong core of the students has been together since kindergarten. New students are welcomed in, and students lost are strongly missed. We all get involved in after school activities such as sports and clubs, but of course, there is another side to the fun. Life seems to be getting a little more hectic juggling the sports with homework, after-school jobs and concentrating on our futures.





"Nate, Nate, let down your hair!" Following a parade around the school through each of the homerooms, throwing candy, Nate Long settles down in his glamorous Rapunzel costume.

Eighty degrees and burning up, Liz Creed faithfully honors her favorite character of Winnie the Pooh. Sitting in classes with some of the costumes proved to be quite a challenge!

Everybody has a different view of Littleton. Some find it hard to keep their individuality because of our lack of numbers, but most find that the warm smiles and unity of each grade make up for it.

Four years in high school becomes more of a learning experience than just what you learn in the classrooms, although the education that we receive throughout carries through the rest of our lives. We learn to accept and respect each other for different ideas and concerns.

This year, we looked at student lives both in and out of school, to get a better picture of Littleton and its students.

Culture Week

Last April it came time again to put our minds to rest and celebrate a full week of games, sports, and art, to show how cultural we really are. We played softball, international handball, and volleyball; we relaxed during bocce, croquet, and Ukrainian egg decorating. We enjoyed the week before spring break knowing our next vacation was summer. The week began with a guest speaker who spoke to us about breaking the boundaries of our own little worlds and closed with the Class of '94 winning the week long contest. We learned a little bit more about each other, our countries, the continents, and our world as a whole.

Foreign Language Night

Foreign Language week was celebrated differently this year. Instead of an entire week, there was one fun-filled night, overflowing with crafts made by students. It was officially called the Foreign Language Festival.

The language teachers did away with the ordinary activities and came up with new and inventive ones. Student crafted candles, kites, gargoyles, and pinatas were displayed and voted on by teachers. Contests pushed students' creativity and intellect to the limit! Amanda Olsen was a big winner for the night, placing in almost every contest!

Students split into groups to build and design cafes from Russia, Spain, and France, or they formed teams for a mind boggling trivia contest. Many showed their artistic abilities through dance and music.

The evening was incredible, the food was great, the crafts were wonderful, and the entertainment spectacular. We hope that the language teachers will plan more festivals that are as much fun and as educational as this one was. Thank you, foreign language teachers!

"You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown"

The minute we saw our names printed up on that white sheet, our hopes and spirits grew as we anticipated yet another Littleton High School play. We suffered through the tough long hours of Sunday, Wednesday, and Thursday night rehearsals, and one would wonder how we did it . . . bringing our dinner and eating between warm-ups and scenes, Jon Preston always coming in late from skiing, not knowing exactly what time rehearsal started, where's Pig Pen?, and surviving through tension and stress toward the end. But, Nathan's jokes and comical sarcasm, singing to "American Pie" backstage, sneaking peeks at the Indiana b-ball game during warm up with Mr. Foley, and dancing in the back of the auditorium during "Suppertime" all made it very worthwhile. "Book Report" turned out great opening night, and no one will forget Kate Carson running around looking for props and Mrs. Granata yelling at us for losing them. You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown turned out to be a memorable, philosophical musical for which all of us will have fond memories. The experiences that made us work so hard also brought us closer together.

Poème de Prom

After all the arguing and bickering was done
We were all ready to get to the fun
It came in May, on an unlucky day,
But we decided to give it a try anyway.
After our half day of school we went home to get ready.
Our hands weren't feeling very steady.
Finally the gowns and the tuxes were all in their places,
And moms flashed cameras in everyone's faces.
Once at the hotel we were all feeling swell,
But after dinner was served,
Our health was no longer preserved.
Happily the oreo cake made us all wide awake.
We danced through the night as we held our dates tight.
The queen was in red while her court was in blue,
And everyone else looked dazzling, too.
The Prom was a blast and is a memory that's sure to last.

We Find Ourselves Stretched to the Border In SPORTS

Are you looking for a good way to get involved in school spirit? One of the most popular ways is to join a sports team. That's what a large percentage of our student body does. For a small school, we have respectable sports teams. We have included: soccer, field hockey, football, basketball, wrestling, cheerleading, tennis, track, golf, softball and baseball. This past year, the field hockey and boy's soccer teams both went to States and represented our town well. Through our successful sports teams we are respected when we proudly say we are from Littleton.

Don't be fooled when you look at a well dressed athlete during school hours. After the bell rings, it's another story. On the field or court, it's not always that pretty. Our dedicated athletes stretch themselves to the border saving goals and scoring them. An occasional black eye or sprained ankle isn't that uncommon. Our athletes practice in all weather from the sweltering double sessions to the first snow. And the rain isn't that bad. Can you think of a better reason for getting down and in the mud?

This year's softball season was a great success. It got off to a slow start because of all the rain and flooding of the fields. Once the season started, however, we were on a roll. We had some losses but a lot of good wins. The team was a young one, consisting of only one senior, Krystal Stevens. The word throughout the season that kept the team pumped up was "Dirt." Mr. Feehan and Mr. Shepple helped Mr. Knox coach throughout the season. With a final record of 11-8, we missed States by 1/10 of a point. Both Coach Knox and J.V. coach, Mr. Crowley look forward to rewarding and satisfying upcoming seasons.

The '94 Tiger baseball season brought much novelty: new nicknames, a new assistant coach, and winning. You wouldn't expect a team with a starting lineup consisting of only one upperclassman to be too successful, but with a record of seven wins eleven losses, the season was quite a success. Beating state power Clinton 5-0 was a success in itself for the Tigers. Even though missing the state tournament by just two games was a disappointment, the season brought great optimism for state tournament action in 1995. Mike Zolla earned congratulations for being named a league All-Star as a sophomore. Thanks to Coaches Fitz and Legault for helping us through another season and organizing "The Great Sleepover" - Mike Zolla brought a couch and Nate Long brought a TV in order not to miss the BC Eagles game - and for introducing us to the great wide world of visualization. We look forward to next season although we'll miss the crazy antics of C.H.

"The spirit, the will to win and the will to excel...these are the things that endure." During the '94 track season, this is what kept us all going: the determination to win.

The track team went through numerous tough practices consisting of all of Coach Harhen's conditioning favorites: form running, ladders, 660 progressions, and, of course, the famous Oak Hill trips and sprints. The arrival of Ms. Corkum also kept the long distance team moving. As a result, we ended up with a good season. Even with the loss of some of '93's star runners, we managed to fight for the finish line and come out with many wins. Capping the season, a number of talented athletes went on to compete in the District Meet: Kerry McDonald, Greg Roy, Chaunte Briere, Michelle Toft, Marie Hronik, and Gretchen Turner, each showing their spirit and giving it their all.

Tennis
TIGER PRIDE

Once again we had an incredible tennis season although some would have thought it a comedy of errors. How many more things could have happened? First were the mishaps with transportation. In order to play away matches, a bus is supposed to transport the team, but we guess it must have been more entertaining to leave us sitting in the rain. While we amused our opponents with our smallness and antics, we also surprised them with our power. At first singles, Julie Tratnyak made her opponents think twice about Littleton. Claire Scanlan, at second singles, surprisingly didn't hurt herself wearing running sneakers instead of tennis sneakers. At third singles, Heather Dennehy managed to stay standing in her own court. Karen Lyons and Jenn Lally turned tennis into the contact sport it should be at first doubles. Finally, Sarah Miller and Deanna Ducharme at second doubles put forth a great effort throughout the season. We had a great record for such a small sport.

Heather Dennehy lead the team in wins for singles and Karen Lyons and Jenn Lally did likewise for doubles. Each member made our opponents think again about defeating Littleton Girls' Tennis.

The 93-94 golf season was one of successes and failures. There were some good individual results even though the team didn't record one win over the twelve match season. The number one and two players, Chad Nixon and Craig Hinckley, provided winning records throughout the season. Ben Bulger, a newcomer to the sport, had to rough it out playing the number three spot against kids that were older and more experienced than he. By the end of the season, Ben improved tremendously.

The top three players of 1994 will be returning to lead off the 1995 matches. The outlook for the '95 season is promising with the younger players and with the hope of newcomers to the team.

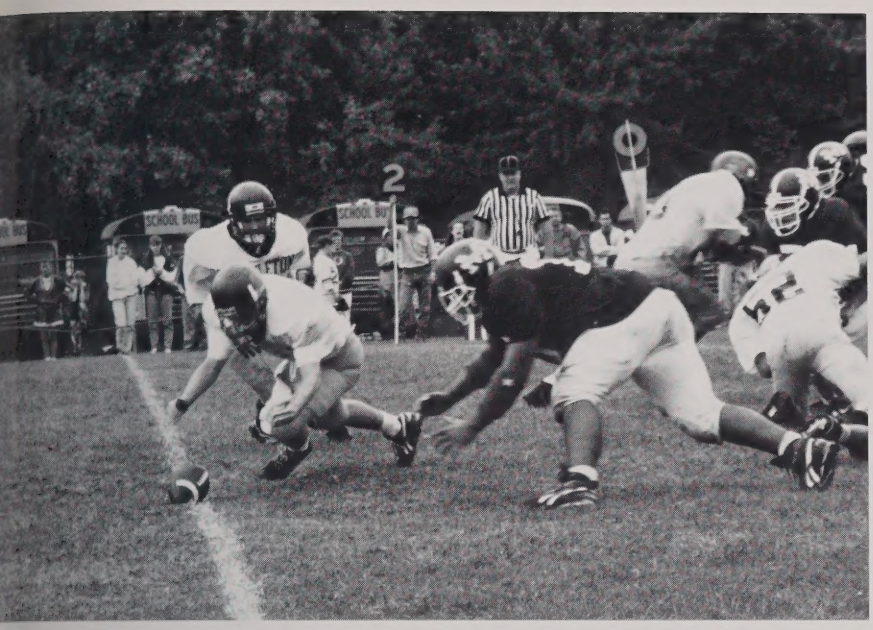
The 1994 football season was full of many twists and turns. Starting out early in the summer, we began weight training five days per week from 4 until 7 preparing ourselves for a monstrous season. Hopes were set high at the start of the season as we plowed over our opening opponent Nashoba Tech 6-0. All those sprints and tiring practices started paying off as personal goals were met, and our confidence grew. We tackled our way through the next four games, confident as headlines read "From doorstep to dominance" and "Line up for wins behind these Tigers." Everything and everyone was in our favor. Head coach McAndrews, defensive coach Harhen, offensive coach Lynn, offensive line coach Furcillo, defensive line coach Moriarty, and defensive coach Goddard all were important contributors in our successful season. Although the end of the season didn't turn out as we expected, we still had a respectable standing.

With a final record of 6-4, our graduating seniors, Don Fetterhoff, Mike Anderson, Eric Rivas, Chris Benjamin and Jason Burgess, have something to remember of their high school careers.

With the talent and experience of the line, Mike Anderson, Eric Rivas, Sean Partridge, Don Fetterhoff, and Kevin Anderson paved the way for the successful season.

After discussing strategies for the up coming game, the Tigers are ready to challenge their opponents.



After Littleton fumbles the ball, a successful recovery is made by the Tigers.

If there wasn't a JV team, would Mike Anderson have to carry all that water to the field himself?

Making to states was on many of our minds this year. We knew we could do it; we just had to want it. And we did, finishing up in the quarterfinals of the tournament. Coach Corkum came in wanting it just as much as we did. She knew that teaching us how to play was not something she had to do but that working together was what we had to accomplish. Consisting of seven seniors, three juniors, and eight sophomores, our team's balance was on the young side. But that didn't stop us from reaching our record of 11-4-2. We also had many memories to go along with our accomplishments. Pasta parties, early Saturday morning practices, freshman football members raking our field, straight backs, fat cats, buddy bags, T.C.C, acorns, and "it's a bit nipply out here, eh coach?"

We would like to wish luck to the '95 team and our seven graduates. Rae, Carla, Mandy, Jerry (Jenn), Little One (Karen), Creed and Bubba (Heather), we'll miss you!

As the '94 soccer season approached, we weren't quite sure what to expect. But, as soon as our season began, we learned work was in order. We worked hard and pushed ourselves to the limit during preseason and had excellent opening games. This year's team was more unified than it had been in past years, and that unity shined through both on and off the field, in some excellent passing sequences, in new plays, and in our spirit and enthusiasm. With the strong leadership of our senior captains, and the effort of our team working as a whole, we were a great success. Although our statistics may not show it, there were certain games that proved to be personal victories and goals met for us, and those were the ones that counted most. Thanks to our seniors: Jaime, Abbe, Kerry and Laura - we love you guys, and we'll miss you!!

The 94-95 season brought about changes from the previous undefeated season, but it was still very successful. Mr. Turner had to deal with many early season injuries which lead to a few losses. But once we got out full team together for the state tournament, we made some noise, losing in the final minutes to Nipmuc Regional, 3-2. Nipmuc went on to win the entire Division 3 state tournament. Magnus Westrin and Nathan Cardoos were newly elected league all-stars. Bryan McDonnell and Greg Butler were both elected league all-stars for their second straight year. Magnus Westrin and Ralph Ettlin also played big roles on the field. We will have some holes to fill with the graduation of captains Greg Butler and Andy Struth, Jon Preston, and foreign exchange students Magnus Westrin and Ralph Ettlin.

Cheerleading

People who think cheerleading is easy should come to team practices and competitions. Creating crowd-pleasing routines and putting stunts up over and over is harder than it looks. To be a cheerleader, squad members must be in condition. Strength, dedication, coordination, spirit, and above all, cooperation are all prerequisites for a cheerleader. Long practices can turn out to be very tiring and frustrating. Practices don't end by the clock but by perfected routines. Bruises, pulled muscles, bumps, and "sneaker hickeys" are what come from being a cheerleader.

The cheerleaders show total dedication to their players, whether they win or lose. They spend time decorating the field and gym and even go to the players' houses and decorate before big games. Indeed,"the cheerleaders have shown nothing less than the best."

Even when she's ten feet up, cheerleader Tracy Kalukiewiz, an eighth grader, is all smiles.

Kathy Quinn and Michelle Toft enjoyed the spring like weather as they raced down the slopes.

With our skis ready to race, we dove into the season with enthusiasm. This was the first year Littleton ever had an official race team with an official race coach. Last year when Littleton started racing on the slopes of Nashoba, it was only as an intramural sport. Every Tuesday, when there was snow (an essential to skiing), we loaded on a bus that took us to Nashoba ski area in Westford, to perfect our racing skills as we practiced turning through gates and remaining under control. Practices from 2:30 until 5:30 prepared us for our Thursday races. Our new coach, Mr.Sweeney, proved to be very knowledgeable. Not only has he coached skiing but many other sports such as baseball, basketball, tennis, swimming and diving as well. We started out slowly as some of us learned racing skills and others worked on mastery. During our races, we challenged surrounding towns like Acton, Chelmsford, Nashoba Regional, and Lincoln-Sudbury. For a new team we did well, considering some of our opponents had teams that have been around for awhile. On those unfortunate days when the weather was more for the beach than for the slopes, we sat together and watched videos of our skiing and focused in on perfecting our techniques. We have put in an order for next year: Winter Weather, Please!!

We knew once we walked into the gym that first day, we'd be slapping the end line. But we did more than just that, then and throughout the season. With the tireless effort of Coach Corkum, Coach Harhen, and Coach Moriarty, Littleton basketball is starting to make a name for itself.

Early in the season we clinched second in the Greater Lowell Christmas Tournament. From there we went on to play hard, winning more games, and beating Ayer for the first time in many years. Through it all, our coaches, parents, and teammates pulled hard to make us believe in ourselves. We all know you can talk about what you want, but if you want to win, it's got to be in your heart. With strong junior high and junior varsity teams, and varsity losing only two seniors, we will definitely prove to ourselves and to others how much we want it. Good luck, Mandy and Kristin.

Finally, team members will remember: "I hate boys!", "Slam it, Jess!", "Slacker!", "Your Mother!", "Out-let!", Green Day, Katie's 14 gumballs, UMass game, "#12 winked at me!", # 25, need we say more?!, "Spaghetti fingers," pasta parties, "Sarah McGrath picked a winner!", "Who's the man, Mr. Harhen?", cage-dancing, Lynn's the planet and we're the stars! "mo-peds?- mope heads!"

The 1994-95 basketball season had many changes, including a new coach with his own system. This major change made it a building year, creating players who are all the more hungry for a championship next year. Our overall record for the season was 6-14 with some memorable wins such as our own Paul Rocheleau Holiday Tournament. The Tigers started the season with a 5-0 start, but we soon found ourselves in a losing slide that took us almost the rest of the season to recover from. Unfortunately, many of those losses were very close games that could have easily been turned to wins. On the positive side, we had a Mid-Wachusett All-Star, Kevin Anderson, who was definitely a big force in the league. Kevin, along with Jeff Miller from outside with the three, Bryan McDonnell and Steve Wright handling the ball, and Mike Scanlan rebounding, will return for the 1996 season when Littleton basketball should turn some heads. The season closed with the team saying good-bye to two seniors: Rich Zolla and Nate Long,who have been a part on LHS basketball since seventh grade.

Wrestling
TIGER PRIDE

Wrestling is a sport like no other. Despite the fact that it is an individual as well as a team sport, there are many other characteristics that set it aside from other sports. In what other sport do you run four miles, do 250 push-ups, 450 sit-ups, 100 hit-its, six minutes of spins, and other various drills before even beginning the main part of practice, the long matches? In what other sport can you lose four pounds of water weight every practice? Finally, in what other sport do you feel the huge sense of accomplishment like the one you feel after every wrestling victory? There is no other sport. What the Littleton High School Wrestling Team, filling just eight of the thirteen varsity weight classes, lacked in quantity, it made up for in quality. The team won four dual-meet competitions, despite handing the other teams thirty forfeit points ahead of time. Most of the team members who entered tournaments placed first through third, and overall, we had at least two champions at the end of each. As a team, we also took third place in one tournament. By the end of the season we could boast two Central Mass. champs (Greg Bottenhorn and Eric Rivas), four wrestlers in the State Tournament (Mike Wilson, Mike Zolla, Greg Bottenhorn and Eric Rivas), and one Tiger advanced to the New England Tournament (Eric RIvas). The team loses Eric Rivas next year, but we are still hoping to make a lot of things happen. "The few, the proud, the wrestlers."

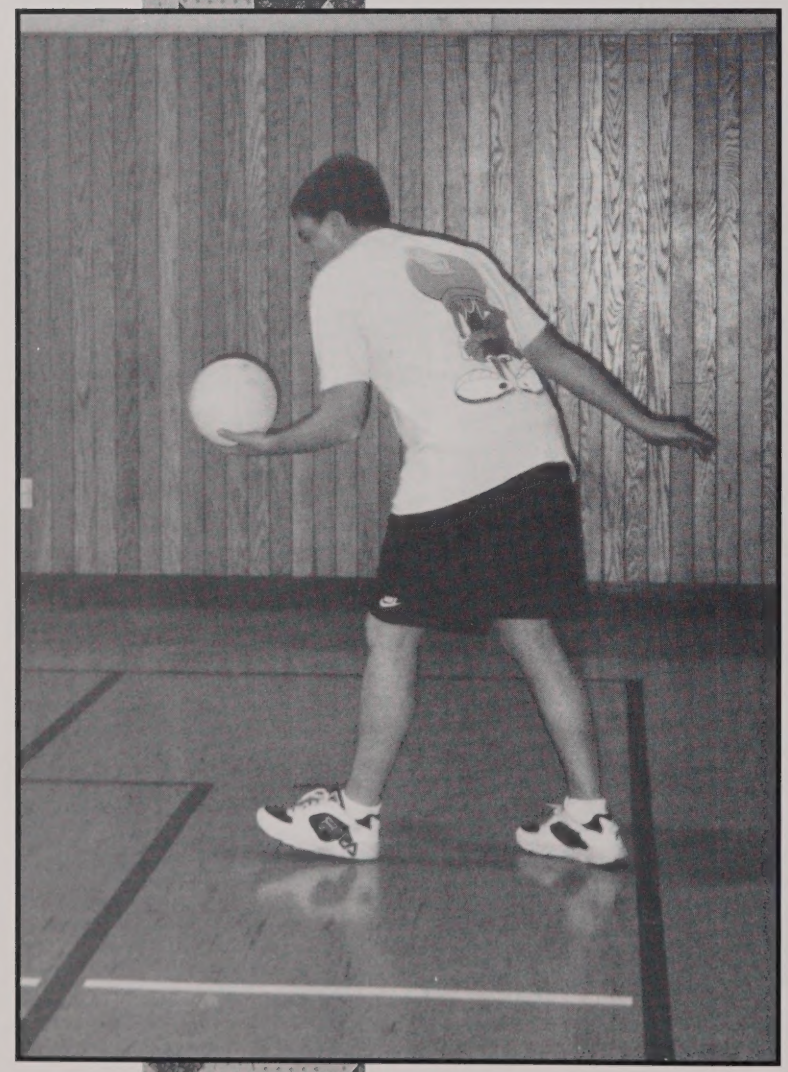
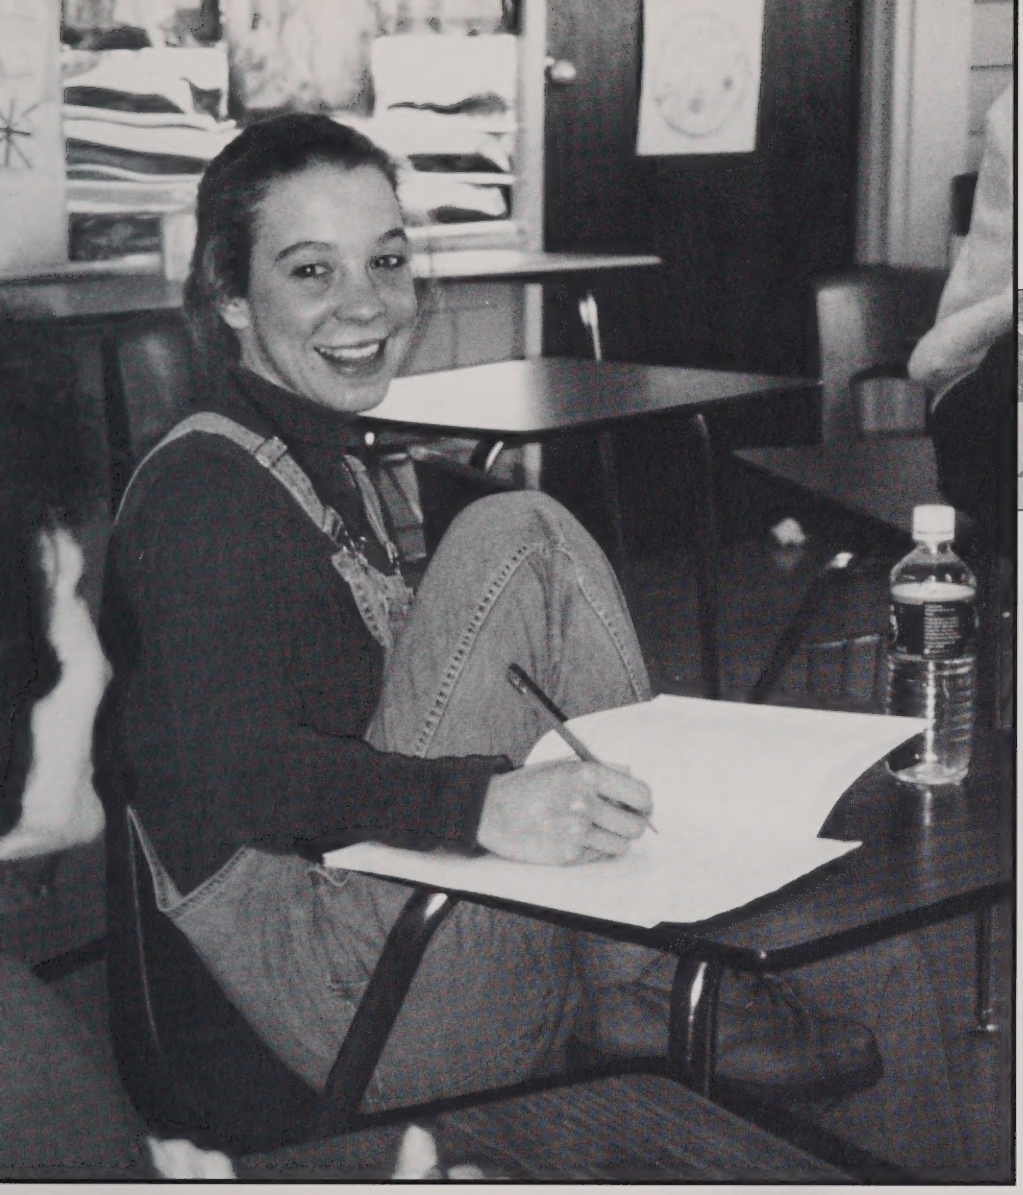
We Find Our Common Weaves in

CLUBS AND ACTIVITIES

Clubs and Activities- Littleton Jr. Sr. High School may be small, but it is definitely busy. On any given day you can find a large percentage of our students going beyond what is required of them academically; clubs and activities are an integral part of the Littleton experience. It is not only the students who make the clubs run, it is the grateful dedication of teachers like Mr. Fitzpatrick (Chef's Club and Outdoor Club) and Ms. Jacobson (Jr. High Student Council and SADD) who make the difference. This year, both the Outdoor Club and Peer Leadership went on overnights, and Chef's Club hosted a brunch in the school cafeteria. Student Council worked on such causes as leaving the phones on all day and putting locks on lockers, while SADD learned how profitable selling "Mock tailes" at school functions is. So with choices varying from Art Club to Math Team to Peer Leadership to Ski Club, not to mention all of the ones in between, anyone can find what they are looking for at LHS.



Jim Poulin practices serving the ball during a volleyball club after-school practice in preparation for the annual Easter Seals Tournament.



Kerry McDonald attends Constitution Committee meeting for the National Honor Society, which worked on updating and changing various aspects of the NHS constitution.

Behind The Scenes

After nervously making it through our first set of speeches and elections at the end of eighth grade, we felt as freshmen that the school was full with adventures and opportunities. There was so much our school had to offer, and we were about to take full advantage of it. We had strong leadership of our Freshmen officers: Nathan Long as President, Shauna Walsh as Vice President, Cara Thompson as Secretary and Karen Lyons as Treasurer. At Class meetings we brainstormed fundraising ideas starting with our most successful bazaar, and started our first year at full speed. Now, as Seniors, we often wonder where we got all that enthusiasm and spirit. With criticals, research papers, chemistry reports and tests, we have to put together bits of time to offer to our class. We still generate many ideas for fundraiseres, but our final focus was put on our class trip. After many ideas put forth, such as visiting a dude ranch, or taking a cruise to Novia Scotia, we finally decided to take a trip to Virginia. We got an excellent package from a local travel agency, which included: a round trip flight, a three day two night stay at a hotel as well as passes to Busch Gardens, a nearby water park, and a day in the sun at Virginia Beach. We left bright and early, 4 a.m. from the school on Friday May 26, to catch our plane at 6a.m., and finally returned at night on Sunday, May 28.

National Honor Society Officers: President Laura Kanniard, Treasurer Amanda Olsen, Secretary Erin Burrows, and Vice-President Colleen Graham.

The National Honor Society members of Littleton High School are juniors and seniors of outstanding leadership, scholarship, service, and character. In addition, each member must have earned a GPA of 3.0 or higher and must be in the top 10% of their class. The 1994-1995 NHS, totalling 39 members, has its largest membership in recent years.

In November, joined by family and friends, twenty two juniors and four seniors were inducted into NHS during a candlelight ceremony, officiated by advisor, Mrs. Webster. Newly elected officers lit the candles representing NHS's four qualities. In March, these officers attended the annual NHS Leadership Conference at Holy Cross, where they participated in idea exchanges and workshops with NHS members from all over the state.

Service projects remain the focus of Littleton NHS. Each year the scope of service expands, and this year's projects are varied. For example, in December we entertained the elderly residents of Littleton House with a holiday program of singing, dancing, playing musical instruments, telling stories, and serving refreshments. We also collected soda can tabs to support the Ronald McDonald House and played the annual Penny Wars during Culture Week to help the same cause. Some members served as teachers' aides at the elementary school, and others participated in our big-brother, big-sister program. A special committee worked hard to revise the NHS constitution. In early June, members guided sixth graders on a tour of the school.

This successful year culminated in a banquet at the Radisson Hotel, where NHS students received awards for a job well done!

When the days start getting colder and the snow slowly begins to fall, the members of the Littleton High Ski Club get their skis out and tuned and excitedly await the slopes of Mt.Wachusett. This year, it may have been a little different. Some of us wondered if the snow ever would slowly begin to fall, or if the unusual springtime weather would finally turn back to normal winter weather. But nevertheless, we looked forward to our first Friday afternoon of skiing beginning January 6. After a long hard week of sitting in those uncomfortable chairs, confined to a classroom all day, Friday became our day to vent our deepest energy. This year, 55 students from grades 7-12 boarded a bus (and a van) at 2p.m. sharp, ready for a six week program of skiing. Some of us rented skis, while the daring ones hopped on snowboards to try and master the skill. This year, we could ride to the top of the mountain in only five minutes with the new high speed quad.

When the conditions were not great, you could find us socializing in the lodge by the fire drinking a cup of hot chocolate or eating those oh-so-good fries. One day, the conditions were so bad, that there was no snow!! Mt. Wachusett cancelled skiing for us that Friday for obvious reasons. When seven o'clock rolled around, the skis went away, but smiles stayed, for the bus ride home was always filled with surprises. Thanks to the chaperoning of Mr. Legault, and the transportation of Laura Briere, this year was a great success.

The international club, headed by Mrs.Moran, enables students to broaden their knowledge and appreciation of different cultures. The annual jewelry sale of exotic pieces is held during the weeks of the Foreign Language Festival.

The Art Club, advised by Ms. Richardson, allows students to explore themselves artistically while they work on projects of their choice. They help construct sets for the annual spring plays such as "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" and "Oklahoma!".

TEAMS members participate in nation-wide academic competitions. A day from school is reserved in the winter for members to attend UMass Lowell to participate in this nation wide test.

The Math Team participates in monthly contests consisting of six challenging questions given by The New England Math League.

We Find Our Support Through Our

ADVERTISERS

This past spring, members of the Senior class went trekking through town in search of businesses to sell ads to raise money for the Littleton production of this 1995 book. This year Ms. Lordan and the business staff came up with a way to encourage each student to get involved in helping the class sell ads. For the first ad each student sold, that would reserve a place in the yearbook for the student to have his or her senior write-up. The second add that was sold gave the senior a free name stamping service for the front cover of their senior yearbook. Every ad sold after that, $5 was deducted from the final cost of their yearbook. Surprisingly enough, some of us didn't have to spent a cent for our yearbooks!! We thank all the business who bought ads from us this year, and the many who have supported us through numerous years, because without them this book would not have been possible. Anytime you visit these businesses, please be sure to thank them on behalf of the Littleton High School Class of 1995 and Yearbook Staff!!

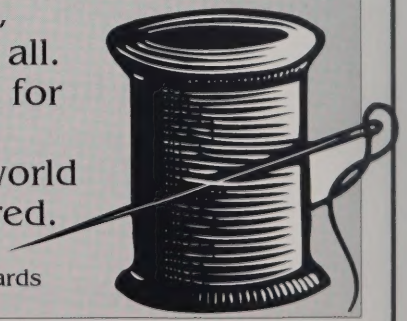
For every difference that makes us unique,
there is a common thread which connects us all.
We share the need for home and community, for love and respect.
May these common threads form a beautiful world in which all people and all cultures are honored.

Hallmark Cards



Alison - I know that maybe you had a rough year this year, but I hope next time you will feel comfortable enough to talk to me. I'm glad that we're friends now, anyways, and I hope we have an awesome summer [swimmin' time!] love, ERIN Alison- This year truly has been a growing experience for me & you. You were always there for me when I needed advice or a shoulder to cry on or laugh at, I mean with! OKLAHOMA was superdeduper! I love spending time with you & I hope we get to gether over summer! Love you Lots!

Always Kate

Alison,

This year flew by. Modern is almost over, the stress will go away! B-Ball rules; Next year is going to be better: No more Shepple! Yea! You know, you should do track next year w/ Erin and I. We have Miss Corkum next year for U.S. history. Well, have a great summer, and I hope to see you a lot over the summer.

Love,
Sarah
McGrath

Alison,
To the student who complained the least, smiled the most, and had the most positive attitude. Right?? Did I get it right?? Seriously. I'll miss you. M. Holt

Sabine,

I look forward to one more year of arguing with Miss Clark + Michelle. Without you it would-n't be worthwhile.

Love,
Anne Marie

Alison,

This year is almost over, I can't wait until summer vacation. Have a great summer, and fun at Kimball's. See you next year when we are Juniors.

Heather Wagner

Alison,
How are ya? I'm the first one to write on this page. Aren't I special. I hope you had a good year. I had a pretty good one, except it was a little boring!!
I'm so glad that the summer is almost here. I can't wait!! Have a great summer
Good luck next year. We will be Juniors!!!

Pamela

Alison,
I don't believe this year is finally over. I've been waiting for it to end the whole year. I'm glad we became friends again.
Play was great. You'll have to visit me at the cape. Good luck at Kimball's this summer.
Love, Sarah-Beth

Alison,
How are you? This year has been pretty boring for me! This summer will have to do stuff. Especially go swimming a wicked lot.
Well good luck next year!
Michele
